Short film “RIDDLE ME THIS” is an Official Selection of the 2015 Idyllwild International Festival of Cinema

(Idyllwild, CA - Dec. 2014) – RIDDLE ME THIS, the new comedy from Silver Shadow Pictures, has been selected to screen at the 2015 Idyllwild International Festival of Cinema on Jan 7th and Jan 10th. Riddle Me This directed by Edward King III is a tale of two guys in debt to the mob. Riddle Me This features exceptional talent Don Harvey (Causalities of War, The Beast of War, Eight Men Out, The Prince and Taken 3) surrounded by fresh talented newcomers in a charming, funny story of why you don't take money from the mob.

“Riddle Me This was an fantastic opportunity to tell a big story on a small scale with folks I love and respect. We are excited and proud of this little film and its acceptance into Idyllwild. We hope it makes you laugh.” Edward King III, Director.

The Idyllwild International Festival of Cinema (IIFC) is dedicated to showcasing emerging film talent and independent films. IIFC is celebrating its 6th anniversary in January 2015. The scenic film festival is located 2 hours outside of Los Angeles and San Diego, giving Los Angeles film industry professionals an easier opportunity to attend and scout for new filmmakers and films. IIFC also provides Seminars and events of interest to filmmakers covering various aspects of filmmaking and the film industry.

As an official selection, Riddle Me This joins the ranks of other quality films of this widely respected film festival referred to as a "... mini Sundance" by the Hollywood Reporter. Joe Dante, director of "the Burbs" starring Tom Hanks had this to say of IIFC, "What a mountain festival should be!" The goal of the Idyllwild International Festival of Cinema is to provide a forum where emerging filmmakers can connect with industry professionals during the week of the festival.
